CASH PLAN ADOPTED.

The postage law, which goes into operation lst of January, 1875, requires prepayment on all newspapers sent through the mails beyond the limits of the counties in which they are published. We have, therefore, determined to adopt the CASH PLAN for all subscriptions. While avoiding the losses, tardy payments and expenses of collection incident to the credit system, we will be required to prepay the postage. The change determined upon will, therefore, prove beneficial to both subscribers and publishment. er. The former will be relieved of the postage tax whilst the latter will be enabled to simplify the operations of his business and to improve the facilities for conducting it.

No name will be entered unless the subscription is paid for in advance.

During the past few months every subscriber in arrears has been furnished, through themails, with a statement of his account. Many have responded with remittances discharging their liabilities and paying in advance for the current year. We appeal urgently to those who have not made a similar response to do so without further delay, as after the first of January, 1875, we will commence to discontinue the paper to those w. o have not paid in advance. The time within which all in arrears can close up the balsuces due and make an advance payment is ample, and we flatter ourselves that but few names will be dropped. ALEXANDRIA, November 9.

EARTHQUAKE IN GUATEMALA. Dr. J. Schuchmacher has given to the Panama Star the result of his observations in the region of Guatemala most affected by the great earthquake:

"As they (the Doctor and his companion) proceeded onwards the effects of the earthquake increased in the form of large cracks and fissures in the ground. While riding cautiously along the road their attention was continually called to the beauty of the surrounding and far-off scenery, made up of valleys and thickly-wooded hills, checkered by the shadows of the passing clouds. The higher they ascended the more numerous the traces of the earthquake. As they rode along, the trees of the foreground As they rode along, the trees of the foreground everywhere were covered with a perfect notwork of creepers and epiphytes displaying an endless variety of flowers, gorgeous in torm as well as color. Crossing the path of another and avalanche and pressing onward through FOR DYSPEPSIA or INDIGESTION. the bush, they came to some huts nearly in ruins. The place was surrounded by hills which had lost their entire coverings of soil and the trees growing on it, leaving only the bare rock. The people they met with at the said huts told them that the shock at first was so strong as to throw every one violently on the ground, and the horrible din set up the failing of giant trees and the sliding down into the valley of thousands of tons of earth was dreadful in the extreme, and perfectly deafening. Averse to return by the same road they had come, they asked the men if they could not pass between the "Cerro del Tigre" and the volcanoes and go from Calderas to Duenas. They were told the road was impracticable. but offered a guide to show them a shorter road over the Cerro del Tigre, leading directly to Duenas, which lay in a direction of south to east from where they were. Their offer was thankfully accepted. After climbing over a For all diseases of the Liver, Stomach and low hill they came to the valley of Chimachoi, little prepared for the terrible sight that burst on their view. They had already seen awful cracks and fissures without number, and looked with awe and wonderment en the depths where thousands of trees had rolled down for NESS. many miles into the valleys beneath; but the stupendous cataclysm now before them, overwhelmed their feelings with sensations indescribable. The whole valley, with houses, cattle, men, women and children living there, had disappeared-probably sunk down. The mountains from every side fell together and buried up everything forever out of sight; God only knows how deep. Everything in this dread-ful valley was huddled together in the wildest confusion, and so changed in its general aspect that the neighbors can no louger trace the least resemblance to the valley the earthquake has filled up. This terrible place our travellers had to cross on foot, leading their mules after them, whose feet every now and then would break through the thin sun-dried crust that had formed on the surface of avalanches of mud that crossed their route. They came to a place where a kind of upheaval bad been going on which threw down great trees on all sides, but with their roots all converging toward a central spot, and the tranks disposed around like the radii of a circle. It seemed to them that here the subterranean forces had tried and failed to break through the strata .la another place a tree of six feet in diameter had been snapped across at two feet above its roots, which still firmly held into the soil, produced, no doubt, by the trunk and top acting and oscilliating like a lever. This tree and hundreds of others laid prostrate were covered with fiving and gorgeous orchids, where a botanist might have collected with ease rare specimens, which under other circumstances be could only get at by the expense and labor of cutting the trees down. From such contemplations they had to move onward, and entered the gloom of the forests, abounding everywhere with an immense variety of lycopediums, vines, orchids and other epiphytes, The sease of danger prevented them carrying with them those beautiful and rare denizens of this region of damp and vegetable profusion.

"On reaching the summitt of the Cerro del Tigre, they emerged into sunlight and a more modest, system of vegetation. They found the whole of this mountain, or cerro, rent everywhere and in all directions, the cracks and deep fissures crossing each other in the most perplexing manner. It was only with the greatest precaution that the animals could be led over the ground. To the right and to the left hung over the abyss, held only by a part yet adhering to the rocks, trembling at every step the mules took over it." How To Cook a Parthibue. - First take a beetsteak beater and break the breast bone, then sprinkle with pepper and salt; lay the bird on the grid-iron over a fire of live coals; place a cold flat iron over it so as to press the bird flat, and cook it alike all through; have ready a flat, and cook it alike all through; have ready a plate of melted butter, and when one side is done dip it in the butter; lay between dry toast and serve hot.

DENTAL CARD.

During my absence from this city as Professor of Dental Mechanism in the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, my practice here will be in charge of Dr. D. N. RUST, whose long association with me renders any endorsement of his ability on my part unnecessary. The liberal fa-vor shown me in the past 1 bespeak for him, as-suring my friends and patients that he is in every sense worthy of it.

JAMES B. HODGKIN.
